ABSTRACT

Comprehensive records of all 1972-73 high school seniors who registered for the College Entrance Examination Board's Admissions Testing Program (ATP) before May of their senior year are analyzed in this national ATP summary report. Information is provided on the participant's ethnic background, high school grades, educational background, self-reported class rank, estimated high school and predicted college grade point averages, and scholastic aptitude and achievement test scores. Students' educational goals, intended fields of study, needs for assistance from their college, extracurricular activities, financial needs, and self-reported abilities are also examined. Information on ordering other ATP summaries is included. (MV)

Admissions Testing Program of the College Entrance Examination Board

TM006 817

The Admissions Testing Program (ATP) is a service of the College Entrance Examination Board, a nonprofit membership organization that provides tests and other educational services for students, schools, and colleges. The membership is composed of more than 2,000 colleges, schools, school systems, and education associations. Representatives of the members serve on the Board of Trustees and advisory councils and committees that consider the Board's programs and participate in the determination of its policies and activities.

PREFACE

When this report was first released, something less than half of the high school seniors of 1972-73 were in transition to about three thousand colleges with the help of several hundred scholarship sponsors. Some one million of these students previously participated in the College Board's Admissions Testing Program (ATP). There they met the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), the Student Descriptive Questionnaire, and, many of them, ATP Achievement Tests. As they did, they created a wide range of information about themselves and asked the College Board to report it to their schools, to colleges, and to scholarship sponsors.

Records kept by the College Board on that process permit the information filed for individual students to be filed also for the high schools where those students were college-bound seniors and for the colleges and scholarship sponsors to which they were prospective applicants. These institutional files are kept on a longitudinal basis for each high school class. Students may participate in the ATP as sophomores, juniors, or seniors, or more than once during those years. The most recent of all information created by their participation is stored for summary analysis toward the end of their high school careers. Beginning in the summer following their graduation from high school, the College Board produces a series of ATP Summary Reports, as illustrated at the end of this report.

Through ATP Summary Reports, the College Board makes a contribution to the information needed for the rational and responsible management of the process of college entrance and completion. Such management requires schools and colleges to understand how various personal, social, and academic factors are involved as college-bound seniors become affiliated with individual colleges and systems of colleges. Each institution and system sees reflected in its own ATP Summary Report, however, only a fraction of several larger populations of college-bound students. Reports are, therefore, also prepared at the national, regional (beginning in 1973-74), and state level for use as backdrops against which institutional data can be viewed for comparative purposes.

The national ATP Summary Report, presented here, is the most comprehensive of all. It includes the records of all 1972-73 seniors, wherever located, who registered for "the college boards" before May of their senior year.

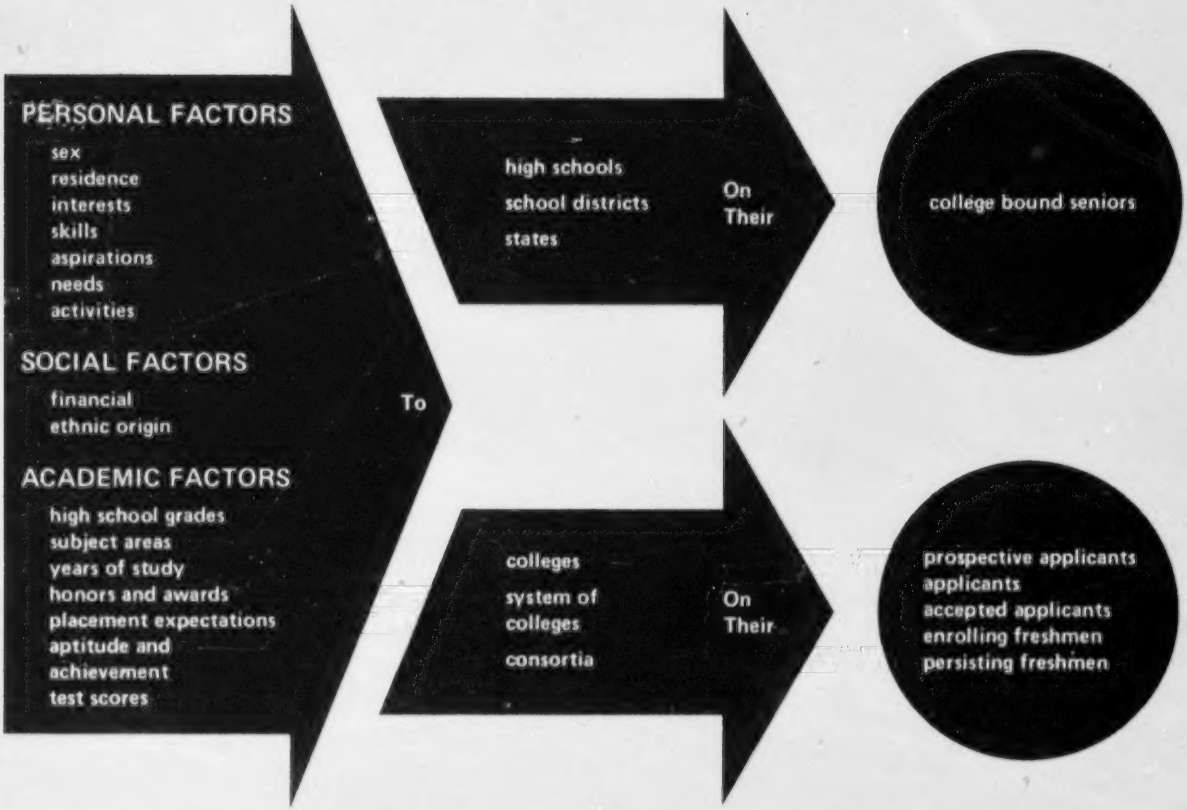
COLLEGE BOARD ATP SUMMARY REPORTS



HOW TO GET ADMISSIONS TESTING PROGRAM SUMMARY REPORTS

For colleges, consortia, and systems of colleges. Colleges that want the College Board to prepare an ATP Summary Report for their freshmen should inform the College Board regional office for their area (see back cover). Reports are also available for the other groups of students listed above and for special student subgroups such as financial aid recipients, minority applicants, engineering majors, etc.

ATP Summary Reports are also prepared for consortia, and for systems of colleges. Groups of colleges that want the College Board to prepare an ATP Summary Report for all their freshmen combined, for their combined aid applicants or in-state students, etc., should choose a coordinator to inform the appropriate College Board regional office.

For high schools, school districts, and school systems. Individual high schools need not request an ATP Summary Report for their college-bound seniors because reports are released automatically to their principals.

Principals of two or more schools, superintendents of school districts, and administrative heads of other systems of schools who want the College Board to prepare an ATP Summary Report for all their schools' ATP participants should inform their College Board regional office.
